“READY TO GO” JOBS AND INFRASTRUCTURE PROJECTS

America’s Mayors Report to the Nation on Projects to Strengthen Metro Economies and Create Jobs Now

Release #2: December 8, 2008

Infrastructure Jobs in Cities – “Ready to Go”

Today The U.S. Conference of Mayors releases the second in its series of reports on infrastructure projects that are “ready to go” in cities across the nation – projects that can be started quickly after funding is received and generate the significant numbers of jobs that are needed to strengthen the economies of our metro areas and our nation as a whole.

Today we are reporting that in 427 cities of all sizes in all regions of the country, a total of 11,391 infrastructure projects are “ready to go.” These projects represent an infrastructure investment of $73,163,299,303 that would be capable of producing an estimated 847,641 jobs in 2009 and 2010.

The Conference of Mayors MainStreet Economic Recovery plan, developed under the leadership of Miami Mayor Manual A. (Manny) Diaz, the President of the Conference, calls for federal investments in 10 sectors that will quickly create jobs in metro areas, improve the infrastructure that the private sector needs to succeed, help the small businesses of Main Street America, and produce lasting economic and environmental benefits for the nation. The following chart summarizes, for each of the 10 sectors, the number of infrastructure projects described by the 427 cities, the total investment that would be required to implement these projects, and the estimated number of jobs that could be generated by these projects.

SECTOR	PROJECTS	FUNDING	JOBS
Community Development Block Grants for Infrastructure	2,412	12,675,711,266	205,184
Energy Block Grant for Infrastructure and Green Jobs	942	6,273,272,563	38,792
Transit Equipment and Infrastructure	628	7,069,333,697	80,883
City Streets/Metro Roads Infrastructure	2,403	17,351,910,359	256,515
Airport Technology and Infrastructure	367	4,036,820,109	30,697
Amtrak Infrastructure	41	1,060,310,000	3,599
Water and Wastewater Infrastructure	2,536	15,366,982,941	133,193
School Modernization	652	3,731,693,882	60,278
Public Housing Modernization	440	1,899,928,687	12,053
Public Safety Jobs and Technology	970	3,697,335,798	26,448

Readers of this report should note that several cities were unable to submit cost estimates and/or estimates of jobs to be created by all of their individual projects. Because this information could not be included in our tabulations, the total project costs and job numbers we are reporting for the cities as a group should be considered conservative.

Further, because these totals reflect projects submitted to the Conference of Mayors by just 427 cities, both the potential infrastructure investment that could be made across all of the nation's principal cities, and the potential number of jobs that such an investment would create, are significantly larger.

In the U.S. today there are approximately 1,200 cities with populations over 30,000, well over two-and-a-half times the number of cities represented in this report. The Conference will continue to collect information on city infrastructure projects that are "ready to go." The next report, scheduled for release in January, will account for a larger number of cities and list a larger number of projects.

Documenting the Need for Infrastructure Investment

In early November, cities across the nation provided the Conference of Mayors with examples of needed infrastructure projects that could be started quickly and completed in 2009 if additional federal funding were made available for them in any of the 10 MainStreet infrastructure investment sectors. For these projects, the cities gave us their estimates of the amount of funding that would be needed and the number of jobs that would be created.

A report describing more than 4,600 projects in 154 cities capable of creating well over a quarter-million jobs was released by the Conference in Washington on November 13.

A week after the release of this first report, President-elect Obama stated a goal of creating 2.5 million jobs in America by 2011 – a goal strongly supported by the nation's mayors. The President-elect described a two-year initiative to rebuild the nation's crumbling infrastructure. In response, the Conference invited cities to again submit information on infrastructure projects, this time on projects that could start quickly in 2009 and be completed by the end of 2010.

Many of the cities included in the Conference's first report submitted additional projects, and many other cities submitted their projects, greatly increasing our total estimates of federal infrastructure funding that could be used and jobs that could be created.

This report combines the information on projects included in the first report and projects submitted in response to the Conference's second request.

A Call to Action – More Urgent Each Day

Main Street America's economic crisis continues to worsen. Since the start of the recession a year ago, the nation has lost 2.7 million jobs. About 10.3 million American workers are now unemployed. About 822,000 have been added to the long-term unemployment rolls (those jobless for 27 weeks or more) over the past year. The nation's unemployment rate reached 6.7 percent in November – 1.7 percentage points higher than a year ago – and is expected to continue to rise into next year. Claims for unemployment benefits are at the highest level in a quarter-century. Adding to the seriousness of the situation is an underemployment rate that recent calculations put at 12.5 percent.

In today's world, metro economies drive the national economy, currently accounting for 86 percent of national employment, 90 percent of labor income, and 90 percent of gross domestic product (GDP). It should be obvious that investing in Main Street metro economies is the most direct path to creating the jobs and stimulating the business that can begin to reverse the current economic downturn.

Washington has bailed out Wall Street, banks, and insurance companies to the tune of $700 billion and hopes that its investment will eventually be returned to the U.S. Treasury and the taxpayer. It is now time for Washington to make another kind of investment, one that guarantees a return: It is time to initiate MainStreet Economic Recovery – immediate and direct assistance that enables local governments and the private sector to invest in the infrastructure and create the jobs that will help restore this nation's economic growth.

Opponents of economic stimulus spending assert that, because infrastructure projects could take years to start and many more years to complete, investing in them would not have the short-term impact on the economy that is needed. We have documented in this report, however, that there are many thousands of infrastructure projects in cities that can get underway immediately and be completed quickly – within one or two years. As we report, projects in just 4 cities are capable of quickly generating nearly 848,000 jobs – well over one-third of the 2.5 million jobs sought by the President-elect.

MainStreet Economic Recovery – Immediate and Direct

On October 29, Louisville Mayor Jerry Abramson, a Past President of the Conference, presented the Conference's initial MainStreet plan to the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee. On the same day, our Immediate Past President, Trenton Mayor Doug Palmer, presented it to the House Ways and Means Committee.

The plan they presented was based on the package of programs for a second economic stimulus that passed the House of Representatives in September but was stopped in the Senate. To that House package we added three needed initiatives: Community Development Block Grant for Infrastructure; Green Jobs – Energy/Environment Block Grant; and Public Safety. In most of the programs, 30 percent or more of the funding would go to the states, with the remainder going to cities and counties – the metro areas that account for the bulk of the nation's gross domestic product. In the transportation sector, our plan demands that current-law commitments to local areas be preserved in distributing funds under the Surface Transportation Program (STP).

It is important to understand that our MainStreet Economic Recovery plan calls for funds to flow quickly and directly to cities through 10 federal funding streams that are already in existence; many of these have demonstrated their effectiveness over many years. The 10 infrastructure investments we are recommending are:

- Community Development Block Grant for Infrastructure – CDBG would be used to create jobs through: the construction of public facilities and improvements, water and sewer facilities, streets, and neighborhood centers; the conversion of school buildings for eligible purposes; activities relating to energy conservation and renewable energy resources; and assistance to profit-motivated businesses to carry out economic development and job creation/retention activities.
- Energy Block Grant for Infrastructure and Green Jobs – The new Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block Grant (EECBG) program would be used by cities, counties, and states to create thousands of energy efficiency and renewable energy production projects. These projects could include energy retrofits of public and private buildings in local areas, installation of solar panels or wind turbines for the production of electricity on local buildings, deployment of new energy distribution technologies (such as distributed generation or district heating and cooling systems) that significantly increase energy efficiency, and development of systems to capture and generate power from methane at landfills.
- Transit Equipment and Infrastructure – Transit funding would be used to purchase buses, street cars, rail cars, and other rolling stock and equipment needed to create additional capacity; help stabilize fare increases; and improve reliability. It would also be used to restore and maintain facilities and infrastructure in a state of good repair through projects that could, for example, expand station capacity, improve rail tracks, and provide customer information screens.
- City Streets/Metro Roads Infrastructure – Highway funding must be distributed through the Surface Transportation Program (STP); this ensures that it will provide maximum flexibility to cities, counties, and states to undertake bridge, bus and rail, and road projects in metropolitan areas.
- Airport Technology and Infrastructure – Projects funded through the Airport Improvement Program (AIP) would include runway and taxi rehabilitations, extensions, and widening; obstruction removal; apron construction, expansion and rehabilitation; rescue and firefighting equipment and facilities; airside service or public access roads; and noise mitigation and abatement (Part 150) associated with aircraft operations, including voluntary home buyout, which would fuel the local housing market, and residential and business insulation programs.
- Amtrak Infrastructure – Amtrak would use infrastructure funding to make necessary upgrades to tracks, bridges and tunnels, electric traction, interlockings, signals and communications, and stations on the Amtrak system. In addition, Amtrak could refurbish rail cars that are currently in storage and return them to service.

- Water and Wastewater Infrastructure – Local governments contribute 98 percent of the total investment in wastewater and 95 percent of the investment in water infrastructure. Water and wastewater infrastructure grants would be used to assist with rehabilitating aging water and sewer infrastructure, complying with sewer overflow issues, and promoting source water protection and availability.
- School Modernization – Federal school modernization funds would be used to repair and modernize school buildings in both large- and small-city school districts, improve their energy efficiency, and equip them with first-class technology.
- Public Housing Modernization – Public Housing Capital Funds would be used for repair and construction projects, including safety repairs.
- Public Safety Jobs and Technology – Providing COPS hiring grants to local police departments would allow them to put additional police officers on the streets and in the schools as school resource officers. Additional Byrne Justice Assistance Grant funding could be used to hire personnel, support those personnel, and purchase equipment and new technologies which make law enforcement personnel more effective in their jobs.

“Ready to Go” Report Series – Updates of Infrastructure Projects

For each of our 10 MainStreet infrastructure investment sectors, the following pages list infrastructure projects that are ready to start quickly in 2009 and be completed by the end of 2010 if additional federal funding is provided. The projects are listed by state and city.

The Conference of Mayors will continue to collect information on infrastructure projects from cities – additional cities not included in the first two releases, and additional projects submitted by the cities that are included – and plans to release updated listings of projects on a regular schedule.
